St. Mary's City:
375 Years Old,
Thousands of Years Young!

St. John's Archeological Site 1976

April · Maryland Archeology Month · 2009

St. John's Site Museum 2009

St. John's, built in 1638, served as a meeting place for the earliest Maryland assemblies and witnessed remarkable events including Margaret Brent asking for the right to vote and Mathias de Sousa as the first individual of African descent to participate in a legislature in America. Beginning in 1972, extensive archeology has recovered over a million artifacts, some of which are pictured here. Now, the location of the St. John's Site Museum is open to the public year round.

To learn more about these artifacts, St. Mary's City, and archeology in Maryland, visit:

www.marylandarcheology.org

Maryland Archeology Month is sponsored by the Maryland Historical Trust; the Archeological Society of Maryland; the Council for Maryland Archeology; the Maryland State Highway Administration; the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission–Prince George's County Archeology Program; The Ottery Group; and CHRS, Inc.